Rainey murder trial set to begin on Monday

The murder trial of Gary M. Rainey, of Locke Mills, is scheduled to begin Monday morning in Oxford County Superior Court.

Mr. Rainey, 32, is charged with shooting and killing his stepdaughter, Kimberly Shriver, 28, and her boyfriend, Christopher Greska, 31, in Bethel, on Oct. 22, 1988. He is also charged with attempted murder for the shooting of his stepson, Barry Coolidge, 27, in Locke Mills.

Following the shootings, the defendant allegedly told his brother Wade what he had done and then turned himself in to police on his brother's advice.

He has been held without bail pending trial, and in December was sent to the Augusta Mental Health Institute for a psychological evaluation.

The trial is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

Gould Academy wins $500,000 endowment grant

On Oct. 13 and 14 the Gould Academy Board of Trustees will gather on campus for their annual fall meeting.

The Board numbers 22, with 17 members from the State of Maine, two from New Hampshire, two from New York and one each from California, Connecticut and Massachusetts. Eighteen are alumni and four members are from Bethel. Local Trustees are Mary Gillies, Leslie Otten, Stanley Howe '82 and Susan O'Donnell '80.

The Board members received some heartening news in August when they convened for their summer meeting here and on the shores of Moose Pond at Camp Winona, owned by Board President Alan B. Ordway '88. In the spring of 1988, Gould Academy, along with 37 other private secondary schools in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont was invited to submit a proposal for a grant from the William R. Kenan Jr. Charitable Trust of Chapel Hill, N.C. Over the last several years, the Trust has selected a handful of schools on the eastern seaboard to which it has awarded significant grants to bolster the schools' endowments. In July, Gould Academy and one other school were selected by the Kenan Trust as recipients of $500,000 grants to be invested in the schools' endowments for

HIKERS ON HIGH—Long after the hardbody runners had crossed the finish line in Saturday's Mahoosuc Arts Council Hike/Walk/Run, family strollers happily brought up the rear. Nearly 200 participants joined in the trek, climbing to the top of Barker Mountain by way of Sunday River Skiway's Three Mile Trail—in the process raising money to support the council's performing arts programs in area schools. This year's participants were treated to spectacular fall colors and a lively mix of weather conditions—from driving hail to splendid sunshine. faculty compensation.

In order to receive the $500,000 the Academy has to raise $1,500,000 cash before July 1, 1991. Money raised must be designated for endowment purposes to qualify for the triple match.

The news came at a most appropriate time for the Gould Board of Trustees, as they launch a capital fund-raising program the goal of which is to raise $7.5 million over the next three to five years to triple the school's endowment and increase the financial independence of the 133-year-old secondary school. The program is focused on raising faculty com-

Board re-opens question of moving all 6th-graders to Telstar Middle School

More than a dozen Woodstock and Andover parents turned out for Monday evening's regular meeting of the SAD #44 Board of Directors to support petitions calling for pupils in those towns to remain in their local schools through the end of the 6th Grade.

The board listened to the parents' concerns, then voted to acknowledge receipt of the petitions and to refer the matter to the board's education committee for further study (see related story). There are no immediate plans to change the present arrangement, under which Bethel pupils enter Telstar Middle School in the 6th Grade, but Woodstock and Andover pupils don't move to Telstar until the 7th Grade.

However, at a meeting of the school board in May, middle school administration and teachers argued that all district 6th-graders would benefit from the programs at the facility.

Their arguments were in response to a proposal to return Bethel students to an enlarged Crescent Park School once the state agrees to subsidize such construction.

The discussion at that time moved on to the status of the Woodstock and Andover pupils. The middle school staff and some board members concurred that these pupils would be better off at Telstar. "No matter how you say it, Bethel kids have a 180-day head start," middle school Guidance Counselor Sally Hannon said at the time.

Director Margaret Hand, of Woodstock, argued then that if having the 6th-graders in the middle school is good for Bethel, then it would be good for Andover and Woodstock. In that regard the district's 6th-graders "are not all on an equal footing and they should be," she said.

Everyone also agreed, however, that it would be politically unfeasible to try to move these students to the middle school at any time in the near future.

Accordingly, the board voted for a compromise plan that would keep the Bethel students at Telstar but allow "the K-4 placement to continue at A.E.S. and W.E.S. until such time as the middle school concept is firmly in place at Telstar and citizens in Andover and Woodstock perceive that the Middle School has a more varied program for

Bethel voters OK new sewer loan

Nearly 200 Bethel voters turned out for a special town meeting last night (Tuesday) and—after nearly 2½ hours of discussion and debate—approved the borrowing of an additional $380,000 for emergency sewer plant repairs. This was a complete about-face from the vote taken three weeks ago at a similar meeting, at which voters refused to authorize the borrowing.

The difference was that at the first meeting the warrant article specified that the money was to be repaid by the sewer users, of which there are 422. At last night's meeting, voters were given three options: the payment could be placed on the sewer users, or on general taxation, or on a combination (50-50) of both.

Town Meeting voted, 96-83, to have the repayment of the bonds come from general taxation. Town Manager Rodney Lynch said the burden on taxes would amount to $21 a year for a taxpayer with $85,000 of assessed valuation.

Immediately following the special town meeting, the Board of Selectmen met and awarded the sewer repair contract to the T. Buck Construction Co., of Stratham, N.H. Buck was the low bidder for the job, at $634,138. The board also authorized applying for a $160,000 federal grant to offset some of the $600,000 that will be borrowed for the repair job—construction, plus engineering, plus contingency.

The low bid was twice as high as the selectmen's consulting engineers (DuBois & King) had led them to expect. That is why they needed Town Meeting. See SEWER BOND, page 2

Education committee tries to kill rumors 6th-graders will be moved

"I don't think the [school] board, the administration or anyone else is going to try to ram anything down anyone's throat," Director John Foster, of Andover, assured the seven parents who turned out for Tuesday evening's meeting of the SAD #44 education committee—at which the resurgent issue of moving Woodstock's and Andover's 6th Grades to the Telstar Middle School was again discussed (see school board story).

In regard to the possibility of the students being moved to Telstar as early as next fall, he said: "I can guarantee you that no one would do anything that hastily."

In fact, Mr. Foster went on, he doubted that such a move would ever take place. "There's absolutely no question what's on the minds of the citizens... I see so much reaction that I doubt seriously it would ever happen."

The committee did agree, however, to recommend to the board that it hold public hearings in Woodstock, Andover and Bethel to explore the pros and cons of the issue. Such meetings would not be a prelude to a predetermined decision to move the students, Mr. Foster stressed, but rather would provide an opportunity "to get the situation aired and to eliminate rumors."

SHIPMATES—Gordon Brown, of Bryant Pond, and his son, Lt. j.g. Matthew Brown were onboard the USS Coral Sea (CV 43) for its final voyage before going into mothballs. A retired chief warrant officer, Gordon Brown began his 26-year Navy career on the Coral Sea in 1949; his son is part of an aircraft group assigned to the carrier for her final Mediterranean cruise. Mr. Brown met the ship in Halifax, N.S., and stayed on for the final leg of the cruise, returning to the carrier's homeport of Norfolk, Va.

Woodstock father and son aboard the USS Coral Sea as she sails into retirement

For the Coral Sea sailors and their friends, who had spent much of the weekend celebrating, it was a rude Monday-morning reveille—the shrill call of the Halifax town crier blaring out over the ship's internal-communication loudspeakers.

Andover selectmen plan to contact cable firm

The Andover selectmen plan to contact State Cable T.V. to remind the company that its contract expires Feb. 10. There have been many complaints by residents regarding why cable has not been installed when Roxbury and Roxbury Pond already have it.

The selectmen have found that every municipality must have a health officer, and steps are being taken to hire one. Whomever is chosen will serve a three-year term and among other duties be responsible for recording diseases in the town and arrange for vaccination for

But for Gordon Brown, of Bryant Pond, it was still sweet music, one more memory to file from "the best 10 days of my life."

Mr. Brown was about to embark last week on the final voyage of the USS Coral Sea (CV 43), outward bound from Halifax, Nova Scotia, to its homeport in Norfolk, Va., where it is scheduled for decommissioning.

His shipmates on the veteran flattop's final voyage included his son, Lt. j.g. Matthew Brown (Gould '81), 3,400 other sailors assigned to the Coral Sea, and 120 of their family and friends—who had been invited by the Navy to ship out on the carrier's final journey.

The voyage was especially poignant for Mr. Brown, a 26-year Navyman who began his own seagoing career in 1949 aboard the Coral Sea.

The Thursday before he had set out on the overnight ferry from Portland to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. There he rented a car and drove the rest of the way to Halifax, where the Coral Sea was making her final foreign port call.

Upon arriving, he found the celebrations getting underway, but he couldn't find his son, who is a maintenance officer in an aviation group assigned to the carrier.

Eventually the father and son connected and joined the party, which included a picnic Saturday at a Canadian Navy soccer field and "a heckuva

Bear kills begin to be tallied, but count is down

With the bear season over a month old, tagging stations are starting to become busy registering bear kills; but one station owner says kills are down this year. Roger Mills, of Mills Market, in Andover, says his store tagged 48 bears (total) last year and this year has only tagged 15 to date. "I think they've cleaned them up pretty well," he said of the bear hunters in the area. The biggest bear brought in for tagging in Andover weighed about 400 pounds, Mr. Mills said.

At the Trap Corner Store, in West Paris, six bear have been tagged thus far, with the biggest one weighing 230 pounds.

At Bear River Cabins, in Newry, only two bear have been tagged to date, while

Bottled water may be cheaper

If you thought Bethel's health problems and financial problems were all connected to the sewer mess, think again. Now comes information that a new federal mandate will require the Bethel Water District to install a filtration plant to filter out some little organism that can cause health problems.

The cost of a filtration plant, plus pumps, maybe extra personnel, etc., could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The federal government, in its infinite wisdom, has, however, allowed for exemptions. If a water district can show that its water supplies are not near the habitats of the hosts of the tiny organisms, which are associated with beavers, an exemption can be granted. The Bethel Water District is now conducting tests to develop data showing that its water is so pure as to require no filtration. (Bethel's water is normally treated with both chlorine and fluoride, but is not filtered.)

Bethel's water district is not the only small district facing big costs for filtration. In the local area, Andover's water district is in a similar situation.

The most sensible way out of the mess is for the politicians in Washington to distinguish between small, rural water systems and big, metropolitan systems. What is suitable, and necessary for a city system is not at all necessary for a rural system. The federal legislation should be re-written to take such differences into account. bwf

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to respond to your Oct. 4, editorial in which you omitted some very important facts and, as a result, you may have misled some of your readers as well as some taxpayers.

First you implied that the town should not worry about any $100 a day fine from the DEP because the sewer plant construction work start date of September 30, as stated in the draft consent agreement, had passed and the DEP has not begun to fine us. However, you failed to inform your readership that the Town has not as yet signed any consent agreement with the DEP and that this is a negotiated deadline which is not written in cement. Until the agreement is signed by both the Town and the DEP, it has no legal force. When the consent agreement is finally signed by the Town and the DEP and a final construction start date is decided upon and the Town fails to meet that deadline, then the DEP will begin to fine us $100 a day.

Secondly, you implied that since the Sunday River Skiway had constructed a new sewer facility for $2 million, the Town of Bethel could do the same. Again you gave your readers and the taxpayers of Bethel another wrong signal. Both systems and situations are entirely different. For example, the $2 million dollar of the Sunday River plant did not include the cost of the land. Also, the Sunday River plant is a lagoon type of sewage treatment system; whereas, ours is an extended aeration type of sewage treatment system. Sites for lagoon treatment systems require more acreage than an aeration treatment system. Aeration systems are often built on sites where less land is available.

Thirdly, you implied that state and federal grant monies would be available to us if we decided to build a new sewer plant. If you had done any further research on the funding issue you would have found out that the Environmental Protection Agency is phasing out its grant program in fiscal year 1990 and on-ward. The grant monies to communities which presently do not have a sewer plant or which require additional treatment of their wastewater. Neither of these situations apply to Bethel.

In summary, I hope that the explanations contained in this letter have helped to clear up any misunderstandings that may have resulted from your editorial.

To the Editor:

Recycling in Newry will begin in the near future and all residents will be able to cooperate in the program to reduce the town's waste stream and thus lower the town's waste disposal costs. The delivery of a special multi-compartment recycling container is anticipated shortly. It will be located at the municipal building and will be used exclusively for recyclable materials, such as newspapers, cardboard, glass and plastics. When the recycling program begins, all residents will separate these materials from their regular household waste and place them in the appropriately marked bins of the recycling container. The remainder of the household waste will be placed at curbside as at present, or in the dumpsters now provided for this purpose.

The Newry recycling program will be in accordance with the state effort to achieve a solid waste stream reduction of 25 percent by 1992 and 50 percent by 1994. Success in this program will not only reduce the town's solid waste disposal costs but may result in the procurement of state reimbursement for certain town waste disposal expenditures.

In view of this, all residents should begin now to separate their recyclables and have them ready when the Newry program begins. Further details on the program will be provided shortly. All residents are invited to the next Newry Solid Waste Committee meeting, scheduled for Oct. 17, at 7 p.m., at the municipal building, when rules for the new recycling program will be discussed. The suggestions and recommendations of all interested parties are welcome and encouraged. The committee needs your help and cooperation to achieve the success the town deserves.

To the Editor:

In your recent article "Boise Foresters Attempt to Calm Fears in Andover," several statements were attributed to me that need correction or clarification. I was surprised by the headline chosen for the article, in that the meeting was not really in response to any fears on the part of the town. Earlier in the summer, there were some concerns about Boise Cascade's bridge across the West Branch of the Ellis River, but those were addressed at that time. During that time, we offered to meet with the Board of Selectmen or the Planning Board to discuss some aspects of our current and future plans. The intent was to provide information useful to them as they develop Andover's comprehensive growth management plan. I made a similar offer to the Town of Woodstock in August which resulted in a meeting on September 20.

I was dismayed as well by the implication that Boise Cascade has not been properly managing their timberland for years, nothing could be further from the truth. We currently own 800,000 acres of timberland in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. This land was acquired from a variety of owners. Naturally, they had a variety of goals for their lands, some of which matched ours while others did not. It was in reference to these lands prior to their management by Boise Cascade or its subsidiary that I used the term "Hit or Miss" management. We managed our timberlands to meet environmental standards and provide a sustained yield of forest products and we will continue to do so. In the past, we managed all our lands to meet a 20 year cutting cycle using a selective cut almost exclusively. Today as our focus intensifies to grow our trees faster, we are able to refine our management techniques largely because of our past management.

Our primary intent was to inform the town that Boise Cascade will continue to practice good stewardship on our timberland in Andover and that it will remain as timberland which is open to the public.

To the Editor:

I am concerned with some of the comments made recently in our local paper relative to improvements evidently required to upgrade Bethel's sewer system. I can understand and appreciate the concern of those users when considering those increased costs which will be borne by them alone. However, it would in my judgement be improper to expect taxpayers living in outlying areas who are denied these services, to help pay these expenses.

Last year my father-in-law, Mr. Robert Marshall paid over $6,000 to install an approved septic system on his property in Middle Interval. Several years ago I, too, paid considerable money to install both a new septic system and water works. In both cases we never objected to these expenses nor sought assistance to help pay for these necessary systems.

I believe taxpayers should support those expenditures for services which benefit all the people for which individuals do not have to provide for themselves.

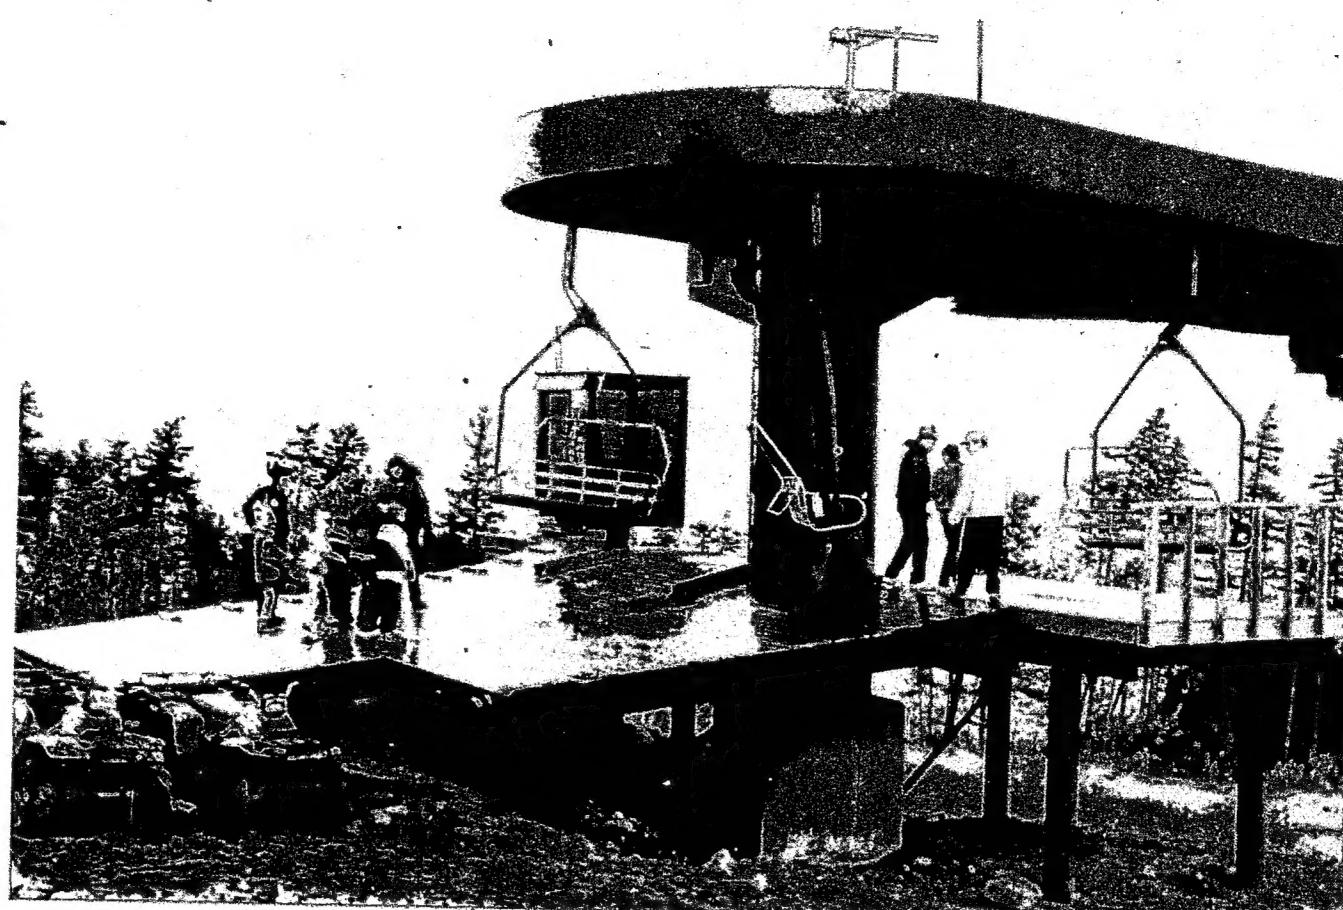

Thus it would appear to me that only those users continue to pay for their sewerage service they now enjoy and for any improvements presently required or in the future.

To the Editor:

In accepting the Nathaniel Tucker True Award, the Gould Alumni weekend, Joan Benoit Samuelson mentioned that she was an alpine skier as a youngster. She also mentioned that she broke her leg while skiing. While running to recover from that broken leg, Joan discovered a love of a sport that eventually led to an Olympic gold medal. I thank you for thinking I had some part in all this but I was in no way responsible for the beginning running or her broken leg.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE HAVING FRIENDS AT THE TOP—Sunday River Skiway lift attendants Mitch Maddocks, Tom Brown and Randy Gagnon loaded weary hikers for a quick trip down Barker Mountain, following Saturday's Mahosuc Arts Council Hike/Walk/Run. welcome aboard" on the ship's fo'c'sle on Sunday.

Once aboard, the guests had the run of the ship, as long as they were accompanied by a sponsor, Mr. Brown said. Some people were on the move from revellie to taps, just moving all over that ship.

At noon Monday the ship was underway, and the first order of business after leaving port was a man-overboard drill, so the guests would know where to go in the unlikely event someone ended up in the drink.

If someone did, it wouldn't necessarily have been a man. Many of the guests—tigers and tigresses—"the Navy tabbed the guests—were women, the wives, daughters and friends of Coral Sea crew members. "It was the first time there were women overnight on a combat ship during its regular operations," Mr. Brown said.

On Tuesday the ship hit the only patch of rough weather it was to encounter on the five-day trip. The low cloud ceiling forced cancellation of scheduled practice flights for an air show to be held the next day.

But Wednesday dawned calm and clear, and the luck of practice didn't seem to have hurt the pilots a bit. "It was unbelievable," Mr. Brown said of the air show. "We had ringside seats of the bridge and flag bridge as the ship's three catapults launched A-6s and F-18s." The planes formed up and flew in formation by the carrier, with one breaking the sound barrier just over the ship.

The show was the highlight of the trip, but it was not without one embarrassing moment for former boatwains mate and chief warrant officer Brown—who dropped his eyeglasses and saw them tumble to the flightdeck.

In order to protect the extremely sensitive—and expensive—jet engines, carrier personnel are paranoid about even the slightest foreign objects on the flight deck. The errant eyeglasses "were confiscated real quick," Mr. Brown said, then returned via the ship's executive officer.

His glasses back and unbroken, Mr. Brown was able to watch the following day from the admiral's chair on the flag bridge as all the planes from the seven onboard squadrons flew off for the final time, headed for their scattered home fields.

On Friday, the ship's palanquin gun was fired, and there was small arms practice on the fantail.

Early Saturday morning, as the carrier entered the Norfolk shipping channel, military and civilian dignitaries flew out and joined in what will probably be her last sea detail.

At 10:30 a.m., the Coral Sea tied up near the newer and much larger USS John F. Kennedy and USS Dwight D. Eisenhower. Her farewell voyage was history, as will soon be her 33-year Navy career.

Mr. Brown left his old ship quickly, along with the rest of the guests and most of her crew. It had been a trip he will never be repeated, but a trip he will never forget.

"I don't think I've ever seen him so charged up," his wife, Beverly, said of his return. Smiling, she added: "I wish I could send him back again."

William Gill reported to the Selectmen that when the stonemason was repairing the graves at the Andover Cemetery his dog allegedly "made a meal" out of Mr. Gill's dog, resulting in $55 in veterinarian bills for which he has not been compensated. The consensus of the board was that this matter is not the responsibility of the town, but the selectmen agreed to write a letter to the stonemason telling him not to bring his dog to the job.

The town has ordered 250 tons of salt at $35.74 a ton from Granite State, a saving of $1.75 per ton over last year.

It was decided that from now on parol involved seeking tax abatements will be notified of the decisions by letter.

Richard Pelletier sought to have only one acre of his land removed from tree growth, rather than two. This leased land has a camp built on it by William Harmon and has been reclassified as to taxes.

The selectmen agreed with Mr. Pelletier, providing the sewer is suitable for one acre of land and not two and if the planning board agrees. If a tax adjustment will be made to Mr. Pelletier.

The selectmen declined the request of Postmaster Desjardins that the town slow the post office lot, reasoning that it is private property leased by the post office.

The Community Energy contract has been finalized, so the digging to remove unwanted gasoline tanks can begin.

Investigation will be made as to the location and type of septic system the Town Hall has, as it has been causing problems which have to be remedied. The addition of a new gas stove to the Town Hall will be tabled until that problem is taken care of.

One applicant was present for the position of dog officer, but the selectmen have postponed a decision until another person who has shown interest in the position also applies. The town will provide a carrier for the vehicle of the dog officer, which will be returned to the town if the dog officer leaves.

Sewer bond

authorization for additional borrowing. Voters had approved $480,000 in indebtedness back in February, which the selectmen thought would be enough for the construction work, plus the consultants' fees, plus 10 percent for contingencies.

The original $480,000 loan will be repaid by the sewer users only, as will the $200,000 still remaining from the loan that originally helped build the sewer plant 15 years ago.

The selectmen's independent consultant, John Fancy, was granted the right to address Town Meeting and told the voters the sewer system has not been right since it was built. He said the two main problems were design flaws in the plant itself and leaking and poorly designed sewer lines that allow storm water and sump pump discharges to enter the sewer system. The faulty sewer plant design, plus the infiltrated water in the sewer lines, means the plant cannot handle the demands placed on it, especially during snow melt and spring rains.

As a consequence of the excessive water in the sewer lines during spring, plus the plant's inability to handle it, the Bethel sewer system sends raw sewage into the Androscoggin River at certain times of the year, which is in violation of the town's discharge permit issued by the Department of Environmental Protection.

Mr. Fancy indicated that the water infiltration was the more serious of the two problems. "It's rainwater that's the cause of the problem," he said.

This led to a lot of discussion as to whether it made better sense to spend a million dollars to repair the sewer lines or to spend a million dollars to put a bandaid on the sewer plant. Most of the voters who spoke on the issue favored the former approach and wondered why the selectmen were choosing to do the latter approach.

Consultant Fancy said, "Basically the reason we're looking at the treatment plant [repair] is because that's what's in the consent decree [between the Town and the DEP]." He added, "I'm not going to guarantee you that this will solve the problem."

He did, however, declare that the partial repairs to the plant would boost its capacity to at least its rated capacity, and probably more. "Three hundred nine thousand gallons per day will be the new capacity of the plant," he promised. The rated capacity is 300,000 gallons per day. The current capacity has been tested to be about half that.

Mr. Fancy said the emergency repairs, while satisfying DEP, would not end the $800,000 in repairs would have to be done within five years, plus the $1 million to $1.5 million in replacement work that would have to be done on the sewer lines.

Woodstock closes road; ups road and legal funds

At a special town meeting last night (Tuesday), Woodstock voters narrowly approved discontinuing a small dirt road on Merrifield Hill, and they agreed to raise more money for the town's legal and winter roads accounts.

The voters authorized the town to appropriate an additional $7,500 toward winter roads and $10,000 toward the town's legal fees. Both amounts are to come from surplus.

By a vote of 7-5 they also went along with a request from Michael and Susan Forskus to close the small dirt road connecting routes 26 and 232.

All board members attended Monday's meeting, as did Student Council Member Teague Berry, who asked the board to reconsider the policy that currently prohibits the sophomore class from selling candy after school.

VENERABLE CALCULATOR—Gould Alumnus Bobby Saunders, of Bethel, explains some of the intricacies of the Thacher's Calculating Instrument to Gould senior Andy Levi, of Burlington, Vt. The 19th-century manual calculating device is currently on display in Hanscom Hall.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

The romantic vision of artists Thomas Cole (1801-1848) and Frederick Church (1826-1890) was the featured topic at the October meeting of the Bethel Historical Society, held Thursday evening at the Moses Mason House. Featured speaker for the program was Wesley McNair, professor of English at the University of Maine at Farmington. His appearance was supported, in part, by a grant from the Maine Humanities Council.

During his slide presentation, Professor McNair, a New Hampshire native with degrees from Middlebury College and Bread Loaf, discussed the work of Cole and his protégé Church as realistic painters of nature and as artistic moralists. Cole, who is generally considered the founder of the native landscape school of American artists (Hudson River School), in 1827 painted a large "View in the White Mountains, New Hampshire" in a realistic style while at about the same time completing "Expulsion from the Garden of Eden," an imaginary and moralistic work. Church, who traveled widely throughout northern New England, was influenced by Cole in his early works, which were idealizing, as well as in others that were realistic landscapes. According to Prof. McNair, both artists were troubled by America's increasing obsession with materialism and industrialization that were altering forever the national landscape.

During the business meeting that preceded the program, President Marvin Ovinga announced that the next meeting would be on Nov. 2 and would feature the annual collectors' and "What's It?" night. Anyone with a "What's It?" or a collection of old items was urged to bring something for the Nov. 2 meeting. The president thanked all those who had made the Society's annual Homecoming Day such a success.

The "Artifact of the Month" was announced as a collection of Twitcheil documents from Terry Wall, of Newfane, Ore. Mrs. Wall, a Twitcheil descendant, recently visited the Society and presented this collection for use in its Eva Bean Research Room. On display during the evening was a copy of the 1819 inventory of Eleanor Twitcheil's estate and a table to be used for measuring logs. Twitcheil was the first settler of what is today Bethel Hill and also donated the Bethel Common to the West Parish.

President Ovinga expressed the Society's gratitude for such important additions to the collections of the Bethel Historical Society.

Persis Post announced that the refreshments would include the traditional cider and donuts as well as a honey cake to celebrate the Jewish New Year for a sweet life.

Ask a lawyer . . .

I am a resident of a small town and I am concerned about a joint meeting scheduled by the Board of Appeals and Planning Board to grant special exception to allow a business to be built in a residential zone. Is a joint meeting such as this legal and proper under Maine law?

In 1971 I purchased two back lots of land 150 ft. times 400 ft. on a private road. Approximately six years later I built a barn on one of the lots and four years later I converted the barn to a two bedroom home.

In 1987 I talked to the building inspector about building on the other lot and was told that this lot has become part of the other lot now that I have built on it, making it all one parcel of land 300 ft. times 400 ft. (note: all this land is approximately 225 ft. from the high water mark). These two parcels of land have been registered at the registry of deeds as two single parcels of land 150 ft. times 400 ft. each. What do I have to do to make this other lot buildable? Raymond.

The question raised is whether adjoining lots in common ownership made non-conforming by the enactment of a municipal shoreland zoning ordinance must be considered combined into a single conforming lot (or at least a lot closer to conformity than the original adjoining lots).

Municipalities have taken three general approaches to such matters. The most liberal is to treat all nonconforming lots of record as legally existing lots, whether or not they abut other land in the same ownership. However, few, if any, municipalities which have revised their shoreland zoning ordinances within the last few years retain this approach.

A second position is that nonconforming lots of record existing at the time an ordinance is adopted may be used separately, whether or not they adjoin other land in the same ownership, provided that the uses proposed meet or exceed standards other than lot area.

Ordinances of this type, however, generally require owners to seek variances from the appropriate appeals boards for any standards not met.

The third and most common position is that if one or more of the lots is improved and if the unimproved lot does not meet ordinance requirements, it will be combined with the adjoining lot or lots to form a conforming or more nearly conforming lot. This appears the case in the municipality from which this question comes. Accordingly, because one of the two lots in question is unimproved, the two lots must be considered one lot if neither lot meets current dimensional standards.

It appears that in this case only small portions of the lots in question lie within the shoreland zoning area (which in most municipalities extends 250 feet from the normal high water mark of bodies of water subject to zoning). If that portion of each lot located more than 250 feet from the high water mark otherwise complies with all requirements of local zoning, each might be treated as a separate lot. However, such an approach might require subdivision or other approval.

Also, the local appeals board might grant variances allowing the use of both lots. However, most ordinances require that one who applies for a variance show that hardship would result from the strict interpretation of the ordinance. In most cases, proving hardship is difficult.

This question can be answered specifically only after a review of the ordinance or ordinances in question as they pertain to dimensional standards and an examination of the manner in which the lots were originally created.

Job Start program offers business start-up help

The Maine Job Start Program is a commercial loan program that provides low interest loans to people in business or wanting to start a business in Androscoggin and Oxford Counties. With the prime interest rate at its lowest in more than a year, the Job Start Program is currently offering very favorable loan terms.

The interest rate on Job Start loans is two percent less than the prime interest rate. Currently, the interest rate is 8 1/2 percent. Loans range up to $10,000 with a term ranging up to five years and can be used for most prudent business activities such as purchasing equipment, inventory, start-up costs. A project can be production or service, cottage industry, retail establishment, agricultural, etc. Generally, people with income under 50 percent of median are eligible for a loan.

To help applicants complete the loan package, the Job Start Program was awarded a federal grant to develop a training component to demonstrate its ability to attract more loan applications. The training consists of six weekly evening classes and covers such topics as marketing, developing a business plan, finances, management and resources. The training classes are being held currently in Auburn and Norway. Starting the week of Nov. 6, classes will begin in Rumford and Norway.

The Maine Job Start Program itself is a pilot program sponsored by the Finance Authority of Maine and funded by the Maine Legislature. In addition to Androscoggin and Oxford Counties, the program is also provided in Washington, Hancock and Arrowsick Counties. This innovative, targeted-lending program is one of only a few in the nation. The federal government hopes that if Maine's demonstration is successful, the program will be used as a model for a nation-wide program.

If you are interested in a low interest commercial loan or help in starting a business, call the Maine Job Start Program at 743-7716.

Girl Scout volunteers make all the difference

The major strength of Girl Scouting rests with its volunteers. Without these caring, committed volunteers, Girl Scouting would not be the largest volunteer organization serving girls in the United States.

There are many girls in Bethel and the surrounding towns who would like to be Girl Scouts this year. In order for these girls to be part of Girl Scouts there needs to be caring adults who are willing to bring the Girl Scout program to them.

Job benefits include working with great kids, flexible hours and days for getting together with the girls, free training and support, fun, learning and making a difference in a girl's life.

Not a very sunny morning greeting us today. Not at all like yesterday was with the sun shining so brightly. It was another good day for all those who wanted to go to Fryeburg fair and hope they all had a good time. Haven't been and don't expect to as my legs just don't let me walk around enough. A mile hike a day is good but more than that isn't so good.

Olive Risko was down a week ago to rehearse for the ski we were doing for the variety show on Friday night, Sept. 29. We wanted to be sure we all knew what to do to make it a good ski and it was. While she was here, we did a lot of thinking back to the other days and the folks we used to know. It is always nice to remember back and think of all one's old friends of days gone by.

Come Friday night and we were on our way to the variety show. Peggy had seen to it that there were lots of posters out and it was well advertised all around. She had gotten a number of gifts to be given during the evening and so had Bertha Benoit, as well as others I guess. There were over 20 gifts given out during the evening. The show was a hit and we all had a grand time. Wish there had been more folks come to see and enjoy the show but those who did come didn't go home disappointed in the entertainment.

There was a lot of toe tapping music as well as jokes and a skit or two. The drawing for gifts took place between acts and there were lots of laughs during the evening. Anyone who missed it doesn't know what a good time they would have had had they been there. It ran late and then there was a little dancing going on when we left for home. What an evening! Saturday night was dancing at West Paris Grange Hall and Russell and Peggy went. It was to benefit the ramp project and they had a good turnout so it paid off well. I am glad for them. It is so nice to have things available for those who are handicapped so they don't always have to stay at home and late themselves.

Sunday morning Peggy was up and going early as she was going up to get Charlotte Cole and go to Fryeburg fair. They didn't get home till late that night. It seems that Charlotte had never been to the fair before so really enjoyed it.

Russell and I stayed home as we expected a hard day Monday. We left home about 7:30 in the morning and went to Lewiston to my daughter's home. There we went with her to Don and Ida Randall's in Augusta, and from there up through to Lake St. George to see Corrine Parady for a consultation on the macrobiotic diet and what she thought we should have and not have. We enjoyed meeting her and certainly learned a lot about ourselves and what she thought we might do to make our lives better. Macrobiotics is a whole new way of eating and I'm sure isn't for everyone but we all have eaten too much red meat and not enough whole grains and vegetables the way they should be cooked. No sugar is a good way to start a change as well as leaving off the meat but as I said, I'm sure many folks want to leave sweets alone. Each has to make their own choice and we have decided it might be worth it to try to feel better. Time will tell for us if we have made the right choice but there is no harm in trying.

We got back to the Randall's and had lunch though it was later than we had any idea it would be. What a lovely dinner she had prepared for us, and most delicious so it can be tasty and good for you at the same time. We had to eat and run as Wynona had to get back and was already late. Got to Lewiston and picked up her girls and took them home, then she took us to Auburn to meet Peggy at her daughter's home and from there we came home. It was nearly 5 o'clock and we needed to be ready to go to Grange at 6:45 so not too much time to rest in between times.

We went to Grange and again it was late when we got home. I was over tired so didn't sleep so good, therefore didn't feel so good on Tuesday but guess I will recuperate in a few days.

I made a casserole for Russell and Peggy to take to Foxboro Grange Tuesday night but didn't go myself and they didn't stay for the meeting. Just went and helped with the supper and cleaning up and then home as they were tired also. Peggy had been to the stores to do her cards that day also.

I enjoyed the colors of the leaves on Monday and when I take my walks up the

Monday evening at the municipal building in Newry, a man from Central Maine Power Co. gave a talk about electrical safety in the home and out of the home, especially on defective wiring around appliances and when wires are down because of storms. Also in danger while repairing a house and handling a ladder, what proper clothing to wear and not to wear. All the Newry firemen were present, a few with their wives and there were a few other ladies and gentlemen also. A movie was shown on the proper procedure of how you can save a life by doing the proper thing.

By COUSTA MORGAN

This evening I pulled out my scrapbook of "Trails Remembered." This took me back to the days when Ruth, Fay, Anna and I hiked the many trails pictured and recorded between its covers.

As I think of yesteryears my thoughts idly roam and a bit of you; I come bringing home. I walk with you, dear friends, down a shady lane as we walked long ago in sunshine and in rain. There are those special memories we cherish through the years; the most of them are happy ones, a few are touched by tears.

We went to see the silent woodland where no sound of wheels were heard and nothing broke the stillness save the singing of a bird.

The scenes of rural Maine with their constant seasonal changes; sometimes subtle, sometimes stark, sometimes bursting overnight into flame or flower have inspired the imagination of artists throughout time.

We loved the leaf dappled trails beneath our eager feet.

The first walk that I took with Ruth was on July 26, 1965. We went over Patch Mountain. I especially recall the field of black-eyed Susans. This flower is hard to forget for it is distinct in personality; it never slumps but is alert, sunny, brave and free.

On today's date in 1970 we were in Grafton Notch where we climbed Table Rock. We eased along the trail glad to be out. We found the charm and beauty of the valley and responded to it. Bluffs and purple shadows streamed in the background of the brilliant yellow and orange leaves. A luminous glow from above reflected a golden splendor on everything.

Another place which we explored was Rangeley Lake region. It was named for Squire Rangeley of Yorkshire, England, who purchased this region in 1825 and moved here with the idea of reproducing an English Feudal System in the Maine wilderness. Rangeley lived in a two story house, a mansion on the lake for 15 years, playing lord of the manor until intense local resentment drove him away.

This is a brief bit of my scrapbook, which took me two years to put together. Our wilderness is the raw material out of which man has hammered the artifact called civilization.

Looking from my windows now I see color everywhere.

My week has been busy for I have taken off screens, washed windows and put on double windows. I have also been piling firewood in my woodshed. The few sprinkles of snow on Wednesday reminded me that winter is on its way.

My callers have been a few of my many friends: David, Sally and Mary Holt, Norway; Carl and Lettie Brooks, West Farris; J. E. Howe, Bryant Pond; Eleanor Hannan, West Farris; E. Mundy, Bethel; A. Jarvenpaa, Leona's Holt, town.

Rena Curtis was in Lewiston on Thursday.

Katie Tamminen was hospitalized after a fall at her home. She is better.

Aarne Jarvenpaa was a guide for a party of seven of his relatives to the top of Overcut Bluff to view the foliage last Sunday.

A 17TH CENTURY EXPERIMENT—Telstar students David Foster, Tony Stevens, Bruce Korhonen and Teague Berry perform a physics experiment much the same way Galileo did in the 1600s. Such simple devices as inclined planes, water clocks and rolling balls all helped contribute to the understanding of acceleration.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

The 6th of October and rain after a mixed bag of weather. The previous weekend was a beautiful one with the foliage almost at its peak. Then the 4th we had spitting snow on and off all day. It didn't stay, but with the cold, gave us a taste of what is to come. Sept. 30 Jim, Sue and Heather Gibson came for the day. Jim helped by picking apples from the tops of the trees and Sunday George came to help. Tuesday I took the car to South Paris to get it inspected and ready for winter. My sister, Iva Holden, picked me up so I could spend the time at her place and had a good time calling up friends that would be a toll call from here, as Iva had to take a friend out for errands. Brother John Allen also came by for a visit. Ira and Kristin Gibson and Kristin's brother, Michael Greene of South Paris, went to Fryeburg fair. Ernest, Alberta Angevine, Betty Blake and Evelyn Reed went to Fryeburg fair; George and Betty Gilbert; Homer and Edie Smith were among the ones who went to the fair Oct. 3.

Don and Karen Bean have been working on the oil hoping to get it done before winter sets in. Bob and Linda Howe went Sept. 30 to the wedding and reception of Vern Davis and Tami Polansky. The wedding was outside ceremony and the reception was at the Legion Hall in Locke Mills. Martha Keniston Bangs, Dresden, came over the weekend for her 25th year alumni room at Gould Academy. Saturday Becky, Jon and Jen Shaw; David, Jody and Heath Keniston of South Paris; and Peter, Stacey and Elise Keniston of Turner all met at their parents', Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keniston's.

Dr. Leonard Shaw went to the Samoset Resort at Rockland for a weekend of optometrist conferences.

Alten MacDougall left Sept. 20 and came back the 27th to MacDougall's Corner at Prince Edward Island, Canada, visited Bray and also went with a friend to the largest auction of two-year old colts in North America. He visited relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden MacDougall came Sept. 30 from Haverhill, Mass., to visit his brother, John and Barbara MacDougall. Also visiting that day was a cousin, Arthur and Mrs. MacDougall of Rumford.

Sept. 27 Joe and Gerry Shimamura went to Concord, N.H., to visit relatives. Sept. 30 Gerry Shimamura, Debbie Seames, Chuckie and Kathy Mason attended a Sunday School workshop at Augusta Church of the Nazarene.

Debbie Seames attended the teachers' workshop Monday at Telstar.

Charles and Ruth Mason had their 35th wedding anniversary the 3rd, but it was marred when their oldest son, Chuckie and granddaughter, Meridith were burned from an explosion. Kathie spent the night at Stephens Memorial Hospital with her daughter, Meridith, and Chuckie and other two spent the night with Charles and Ruth.

Ernest and Alberta Angevine took his brother and wife, John and Connie Angevine of Colebrook, N.H., to Portland Sept. 30. John and Connie were flying to Florida and then taking a Caribbean cruise.

Alden and Barbara MacDougall took advantage of the beautiful day and took a foliage trip to Magalloway Oct. 5. Homer and Edie Smith went to Height of Land, to Rangeley and Stratton and back through Phillips and Kingfield and home. They took a picnic and ate near Rangeley.

Sept. 28 Evelyn Hilborn went on a scenic drive to Rangeley area with Frances Farnum, Louie Coffin and Bertha Flanders. On Oct. 2 she drove to Lewiston and Auburn with Frances and Louie and had lunch at Banana. On Oct. 3 Evelyn was in Gorham, N.H., shopping with Frances Farnum and Mildred Thomas and on Oct. 5 the three of them took a scenic drive to Lovell, Evans Notch and Gratton Notch. The scenery and multicolored maple trees

Committee explores ways to bring more music into elementary schools

Music is one of the most accessible and universal of creative outlets that enrich the lives of both participants and listeners.

Believing that early exposure to the broad range of music is essential to one's enjoyment, a group of community members has begun to meet to discuss the music program in the elementary schools.

Under the leadership of Nancy Davis, principal of Crescent Park School, this group has identified three goals on which they are going to focus:

- Provide support for the district music teacher and the programs that she is implementing;
- Study the local curriculum and those of other districts to develop suggestions for enhancing and expanding the current program;
- Brainstorm ideas for enriching the program.

Other members of the committee include Jean Bass, Merton Brown, Nancy Carroll, Carol Fiske, Cynthia Garrison, Ann Howe, Becky Shaw, Linda Stowell and Gail Syko.

Over the next few months this group plans to meet every few weeks to work toward the goals. Anyone interested in participating or knowing more about the music committee can call Mrs. Davis at the Crescent Park School.

Sept. 29 Ernest and Alberta Angevine invited Evelyn Hilborn up for an old fashioned boiled dinner.

Owe no man anything, but to love one another, for he that loves another has fulfilled the law.

Stevens' fund drive approaches halfway mark

Roland L. Sutton Jr., trustee and Annual Fund chairman for Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway, has announced that the 1989 drive is approaching the halfway mark towards its goal of $75,000.

At the time of his announcement, a total of $38,948 had been received in gifts and pledges from 180 donors.

Mr. Sutton stated, "It is very gratifying to know that we are this far at this time of the year. I have no doubt that we will make or perhaps even exceed our goal by year's end."

Annual fund contributions help pay for services, programs and equipment not covered in the hospital's operating budget. Last year's annual fund has provided rehabilitation equipment for the worksafe/occupational health services department, a new operating room table and a new patient refreshment center for the hospital's medical-surgical wing.

"Our hospital is a community health center," said Sutton, "and that is very evident when so many local residents and businesses support its fund-raising efforts."

The 1989 annual fund drive ends on Dec. 31, and everyone wishing to contribute or desiring additional information should contact the community relations and development office at the hospital, 743-5333, ext. 475.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director has submitted the following report.

We have spent a very busy month preparing for and attending the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield, Mass. This was our fourth year in the Maine Building, our second in cooperation with the Rangely and Oxford Hills Chambers of Commerce. We saw nearly 700,000 people in 12 days, hopefully creating an awareness of the Western Mountains and Lakes Region and all we have to offer, in every season.

Many thanks to the following volunteers who were gracious enough to donate their time. Chairman Bill Riley, Ernestine Riley, Randall and Nancy Harrison, Steve Wright, Sandra Gunther, Ginger Kelly, Robin Zinechuk and Bill and Mary Dutton from the Bethel area and Monica Adams-Acton, Debbie Wynnen, Al LeClerc, Jeanne Roberts, Frank and Connie Shorey, Don and Gay Cooper, Tom Beatty and Bob and Barbara Bizier from Oxford Hills. Also, thanks to the following folks who contributed to the effort, Maine Line Products, Bethel Inn, Newton and Tebbels, Gilbert Manufacturing, Bethel Furniture Stock, TA-KA-RADI Tiles and Bethel Craftworks.

On the home front it has also been tremendously busy. Dillon Gillies, president, has been preparing for our booth at Blue Mountain Arts and Crafts Festival this weekend. He also coordinated the mountain bike trek weekend held in September.

We continue to answer hundreds of inquiries per month and greet many folks at our office who are traveling here in our state.

Our new brochure will be ready later this week.

We are encouraging business folks in need of insurance to consider the United Chambers Insurance Plan, a group health and life insurance policy sold

Farmers: Oct. 30 is last day for ASC nominations

"Farmers are asked to nominate candidates, of their choice, by Oct. 30 to be on the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASC) community committee ballot," said Lester H. Bailey, Chairperson of the Oxford County ASC Committee.

The ASC community elections will be conducted from Nov. 24-Dec. 4 by mail ballot. Farmers in community A, which is Local Administrative Area 1 (LAA) are eligible. This includes the towns of Lincoln, Magalloway, Newry, Upton, Hanover, Milton, Byron, Mexico, Rumford, Andover, Dixfield, Peru, Roxbury, Bethel, Glisad, Mason, Albany, Greenwood, Woodstock and Canton.

ASC committees are responsible for managing government farm programs on the local level. "To meet the needs of individual producers, ASC committees members must be concerned individuals," Mr. Bailey said. Oxford County farmers in LAA 1 have the opportunity to nominate persons they feel would best serve the farm community. Farmers should receive petitions forms by mail soon and complete and submit them to the county ASC office.

"A few basic considerations should be kept in mind when circulating petitions," Mr. Bailey said. In order to be valid, petitions must be limited to one nominee each, must include written certification that the nominee is willing to serve if elected, must be signed by at least three eligible farm voters in LAA 1 and must be received in the county office by Oct. 30, the deadline.

Farmers may circulate or sign nominating petitions for as many candidates as they choose. Anyone wishing to nominate a farmer for the ASC committee election may contact the county ASC office for full details, including eligibility requirements for office holders.

"Farmers should petition for and elect those individuals they feel would do a good job as a member of the ASC committee. The election of concerned farmers to positions on the ASC committee is essential in the administration of farm programs," Bailey said.

He further explained that the county ASC office welcomes all valid petitions. The opportunity to nominate, vote and be elected to office is guaranteed to all farmers regardless of race, religion, sex, age, national origin or handicap.

The planning for the Boston Ski Show is also underway. The show will be held Nov. 16-19, at Bayside Exposition Center. If you are interested in representing our area in a booth, call the Chamber office, 824-2292.

All SAD #4 staff, as well as staff from outside districts, attended a valuable workshop entitled "Students at Risk." Sessions dealt with substance abuse, child abuse, affected families, children in poverty, illiterate families and a number of other issues that put students at risk of dropping out of school or of not becoming happy, healthy adults.

We realize that we come in contact with such students in our classrooms every day. The workshop provided us with strategies for helping the student at risk to become a success. This workshop helped us realize that schools need to expand their services to include a safe, nurturing, positive environment as well as academics.

To help these students' needs (as well as all others), Mr. Hoy and Mrs. Mills have implemented an incentive program. Each Friday afternoon there is a fun enrichment activity that the students have the opportunity to participate in. They must have their week's work done and they must meet behavior standards in order to participate.

Some of the Friday activities include: boardgames, tie-dyeing, shelter-building with Outward Bound, orienteering, blacksmithing demonstration and a trip to Bonnera Pottery with an opportunity to make clay pots in our classroom and have them fired in their kiln. Skating, sliding and skiing are also on tap for when the snow flies. We have found that it not only motivates students academically, but it also gives them a chance to experience much of what this area has to offer. It is also a step toward discovering lifelong hobbies.

Many mysterious maps were put on display in Miss Newcomb's room today. Her social studies 5th-graders had to make a map using any art medium they wanted to. Maps ranged from the U.S. made out of a frosted cookie, to a state done in colored pencils, to the U.S. cut in to a puzzle. What a fun way to experience maps and mapmaking and to let creativity shine.

Apples, apples, apples. That is all the Kindergartners have been thinking about these past two weeks. "Apples" has been their theme of study. They wrote apple stories with the 5th-graders and compiled them into an apple book. They made applesauce and apple prints. They passed around an apple and brainstormed words to describe its smell, look, feel or taste. They learned about Johnny Appleseed and learned an apple poem. Now they are busy learning about leaves.

The Chapter 1 room has received some National Geographic books full of information and extraordinary photographs. Most of them are about animals. Non-fiction reading is a very important aspect of their literature-based reading program. They also have received posters depicting the Disney classics, have scoured the library to find the matching books and have put them all on display for students to read.
Congratulations to this week's top 10. These students have demonstrated outstanding playground behavior. They

Caring for 20 kids slowed up her hobby, but didn't stop it totally Arlene MacKillop, a native of Bryant Pond, has won many hats in her life. Besides being an accomplished artist, she and her husband Howard (who works at Finland with the retarded) have served as foster parents for 18 children over 27 years. Ten siblings were placed at different times with the MacKillops on a long-term basis, and five others lived with them for a short-term. The five Ellsworth children ranged in age from three to 10 when they came to live there, and all graduated from high school while living there.

The MacKillops also have four living children of their own: Paul, Bonnie, Gregory and Timothy. Son Neil was killed in Vietnam in 1969.

All these children under foot left little time for Arlene to pursue her lifelong interest in art. But in 1971 she found time to take day-long art classes for a year with the late Professor Lajos Matolcsy, a graduate of the Royal Academy of Budapest, at the Western Maine Art Group in Norway.

A pencil sketch done in this class, of blind 87-year-old Isabelle Mayo, of Chisholm, was later purchased at an art show by another artist who recognized Arlene's unusual talent. During these classes, Arlene fondly remembers setting up her easel on Lake Christopher, at the rear of her home, while she practiced sketching birches and a boathouse. She also enjoyed the class days at the ocean, which resulted in several paintings.

"I would have loved to have continued studying with Professor Matolcsy," she said, "but with all the children it would have been too difficult. I told him I would someday, and he said he might not be alive then. Unfortunately, that turned out to be true."

Arlene's pen-and-ink rendition of the Grand Trunk railroad station, with an 1861 Tuttle stage parked out front, was used as a logo for the Woodstock Historical Society on T-shirts, notepaper, and other items the Society has sold. Prints were also made from the sketch. The original now graces the dining room wall. Although the Society offered to pay for her sketch, as a lifelong resident of Bryant Pond Arlene refused payment.

"Of all the things I've done," Arlene said, "I much prefer doing people, especially heads, although I do like sketching horses."

A present to her husband was a sketch of a favorite Kentucky Derby winner. A gift from her husband to her of a book of Charles Dana Gibson's Gibson girls led Arlene to sketch many that now decorate the living room in her large home.

Prior to the MacKillops moving in, 38 years ago, the house once served as a boarding house and central dining room for summer visitors to Lake Christopher. An active member of the Bryant Pond Baptist Church, Arlene donates hand-painted note paper to the Hospital Chaplaincy Service, in Hampden, which is distributed, with various items made by others, to nursing home residents across Maine. The organization serves some 10,000 of these residents. Her large water colors of Biblical passages have also been used as a teaching aid in her Church Sunday School.

Her art is displayed yearly at Mollycoddle Days in Bethel, leading to many assignments from those who wish sketches of their loved ones.

"I prefer working with pencil or pen-and-ink," she said, "although I have worked in oils and watercolors. I just don't like to wait for them to dry, especially when I had them around when the children were young."

At the time of her life when she now should be relaxing, Arlene, still thinking of others, presently provides round-the-clock care for a bedridden elderly lady who lives with the family.

Rare calculating devices now on display at Gould

A 19th century manual calculating slide rule whose speed and accuracy was not surpassed until Harry Truman was president, and a similar and nearly equally rare 1940's model made by the same company recently found their way to a display case at Gould Academy.

The odds against two Thacher's calculating instruments appearing in the same town are so slight that even their five significant figures accuracy would be hard pressed to calculate it. But, thanks to Gould physics teacher Tom Ford, alumnus Bobby Saunders and the family of Donald Dean, of Bethel, a display of the two instruments—essentially gigantic, cylindrical slide rules—was arranged at Gould Academy last week.

Coincidence led to both finds. Bobby Saunders, whose background at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and general scientific knowledge inspired an interest in the instruments, made a call one day to Maine Surveyors Company, inquiring as to whether in their decades of providing equipment to surveyors and engineers, they had ever chanced across a Thacher's calculating instrument. No, they said, and no one remembered even an inquiry. Amazing, one month after the phone call, Maine Surveyors called back, having located one of the instruments through a chance call from a person who wanted to sell one.

Mr. Saunders bought the instrument, which he now houses in an acrylic case that doesn't quite fit in the passenger seat of a car. Although nearly 100 years old, it still calculates. "Until 1952," says Saunders, "this elaborate slide rule was the best means of making quick calculations with high precision." Today it has been beaten out by modern calculators, but is not without advantages. "If your electronic calculator goes up in smoke and your power goes out, you could pull this out of the case and be in business."

Also, unlike a calculator, which only displays a single answer at a time, the Thacher's calculating instrument can simultaneously display hundreds of different answers. For example, it can calculate and display 50 distances traveled at a given rate based on 50 different times.

Tom Ford discovered the slightly newer Thacher's instrument after conversations with Don Dean, of Bethel. Don's mother, who lives in Springfield, Vt. is the owner of one built in the 1940's which belonged to her late husband. Mrs. Dean agreed to lend it to Gould Academy, prompting the realization that two of them actually existed in Bethel.

Don Dean's father, Arthur, worked for Fellows Gear Shaper, Inc., in Springfield, Vt., from the late 1920's until about 1975, eventually becoming chief engineer. In his early years at Fellows

Medicine Delays
Onset of AIDS
U.S. government researchers recently announced that AZT, the only drug approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for the treatment of AIDS, significantly delays the onset of the disease in those who exhibit early symptoms. Until now it has been thought that the drug was helpful only in patients who experienced the more advanced symptoms of AIDS. According to recent news releases, AZT has been shown to slow the multiplication of the AIDS virus in persons who experience the first symptoms of the disease—diarrhea, fungal infection of the mouth, or a rash. Early detection of the AIDS virus now means that treatment can begin earlier for many patients.

AZT treatment is a very expensive (approximately $8000 per year), and not all AIDS patients are able to obtain access to the drug. According to a recent report in American Medical News, an estimated 30,000 individuals are taking AZT. With the new finding, it is thought that as many as 200,000 could benefit from use of the drug. An estimated one to one and a half million people living in the United States are thought to be infected with the AIDS virus, most of whom are without symptoms.

NEWS FROM

Adult Education

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program has received notification of the award of three grants totaling $4,500 from the State of Maine for adult training and retraining during 1989-90.

According to Cathy Newell, director of Adult and Community Education, the funding source for the grants is the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act, and the training is targeted for employment in screen printing, child care and small business and entrepreneurship skills.

The screen printing training is a continuation of a program begun last spring by David Tripp of the Telstar graphic arts department and involves 12 individuals from several firms in the SAD #44 area.

In addition to a 30 hour course in screen printing, Mr. Tripp provides consulting time for the businesses in equipment purchase and set-up. Richard Lee, interim head of Maine's Vocational College System, has described Tripp as "a onereplica than the instruments are worth. Nonetheless, people like Saunders and Ford have an appreciation for their quality and precision that does not care to set a value on them."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Dean's calculating instrument remains on display in Hanscom Hall at Gould Academy, and it is most likely that aficionados would be able to visit with Mr. Saunders to see the 1891 version as well.

man Economic Development Office," referring to the role he has played during his years at Telstar in encouraging the start-up of printing-related businesses in the SAD #44 area.

Small business entrepreneurship training is a cooperative venture between SAD #44 Adult and Community Education and the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce. During the past three years, funding has been received to sponsor entrepreneurship training in such areas as business start-up, marketing, managing personnel resources and computer skills. The training is offered in the form of seminars and brings to the area presenters of very high quality at a cost which is affordable to small and micro businesses. Seminars will be held during the winter and spring this year.

Training for Childcare Providers is ongoing this fall, cooperatively sponsored by SAD #44 Adult and Community Education and Finders/Seekers of Community Concepts. The grant funding will support an eight-week series covering topics from child development to the business aspects of childcare. The series is in progress at Telstar High School this fall and will probably be repeated later in the year.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell is interested in receiving suggestions for other types of vocational training from area businesses. Funding from the Perkins Act may be applied for at specific dates throughout the year to meet a variety of training needs serving multiple employers or a single business. For further information, call Adult and Community Education office, 824-2780.

JACKSON-SILVER POST MEETS

Members of the Jackson-Silver Post #68 of the American Legion met at their hall in Locke Mills Oct. 5 at 7 p.m. for their regular bi-weekly meeting.

The meeting was preceded by a joint meeting with the Auxiliary to hear a report by Ruth Wight of Bethel of her travels in England during August of 1988. It was very informative and enlightening.

The business meeting was called to order by Post Commander Frank York. The usual reports of committees and officers were read and accepted. The Post voted to make a donation of $100 to the Ricky Savage family, whose home was destroyed by fire recently.

A report was given by the special committee which was appointed to work with the committee planning the 175th birthday celebration of Woodstock. Suggestion was made by this committee that the Legion Post have a game tent set up with other concessions to help earn money for the project. It was also suggested it would be fitting to hold a flag burning ceremony during the celebration to show the proper method of destroying old flags. It was further voted to place small blocks of wood over doors and windows to facilitate the putting of decorations by those renting the hall without defacing the walls or woodwork. Plans for Veterans Day were considered and discussed.

The sad report of the passing of Service Officer Warren Smith's brother, Harry Smith in Columbia, Mo., Sept. 27. He was a former member of the Post. A military service will be held by members of the Post at the interment at the East Bethel Cemetery at a future date.

The first toy auction will be held Oct. 29 at 2 p.m. Doors will be open at 12 noon. Here is an opportunity to come and do your Christmas shopping early at bargain prices. This is for the general public.

The annual Boy's State banquet will be held at the next meeting Oct. 19 at 6:30 p.m. The boy sponsored by the Post last year, Kirk Haskell, and his parents are to be honor guests. All members are urged to attend.

Notes from the

Woodstock Historical Society

Here is a description of a famous Civil War photographer:

"Matthew Brady studied under Samuel Morse, of telegraph fame, to learn how to take and develop daguerreotypes. He set up his own studio and began to use the newly developed process of wet plate photography. Brady trained 20 teams of photographers to take pictures of the war. Therefore, all Brady pictures were not necessarily taken by the photographer himself."

STRETCHING TO REACH THEIR GOAL—United Way organizers Ken Ramage, Loretta Berry and Wende Gray put the United Way campaign thermometer on the front of Prim's Pharmacy. The recently formed Oxford County United Way hopes to reach a goal of $75,000 by the end of the month.

Agnes Gray School

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Students, faculty and townspeople have been anxiously waiting for our playground project to take shape. We have earned money; surveys and plans have been discussed; the planning board has given the go ahead and this week our principal, Mr. Koch, met with Mr. David Marshall, head of maintenance in SAD #17, to establish where and when to begin. We are all looking forward to action.

Our candy bar sales are booming. At this writing we have sold somewhat over 3,000 bars. Our goal is 6,000. We are over half-way. These profits will be used for computers and we are hoping to earn enough for two. We hope to finish up over the Columbus Day weekend, but if you haven't been contacted and you'd like some candy, please give us a call, 674-2332.

Classroom news this week begins with the Kindergarten as usual. Both classes are learning about the letter Z, and they are making pretzels in the shape of Z and, of course, eating them. This week their creatures in a jar are zeeing in on spiders. Spiders are being studied and then set free. Florida treatments are beginning this week for all Kindergartners who have parental permission.

The 1st-graders are enjoying Dr. Seuss stories. Dr. Seuss is the author of the month. They are continuing with their apple unit and have made applesauce to share and enjoy.

The 2nd-graders brought in fruit to share in a fruit salad. Sounds delicious. This week's special person is Matthew Blake. Good things should be happening to Matt all week. The annual unit on "Our Community" has begun with community walks to identify streets, businesses and what our community has to offer in general. The walks are a preparation for map work about West Paris.

Mr. Burke's 3rd-graders need coffee cans. Donations would be appreciated. They may be left at school or we can arrange to pick them up. This week's fairy tale is "Sleeping Beauty." Syllabication is being taught in reading. For many, reading becomes easier if words can be broken down and sounded out. In science, just in time for Halloween, the skeletal system is being studied.

The 4th-graders are continuing their study of the State of Maine. They are learning a song to help them remember Maine's 16 counties. The story of Don Fendler, "Lost on a Mountain in Maine" will be enjoyed before the unit comes to a close at the end of the ranking period. Mr. Litchfield is currently reading "An Indian in the Cupboard" to his class.

I am going to read the same story to my class, as they didn't hear it last year and it is an excellent story. My 4th-graders are busy responding to their pen pals this week, reading and discussing "James and the Giant Peach," learning about vertebrates and invertebrates. Chad Chase brought in a cooked and cleaned chicken neck for us to examine the vertebrae and the spinal cord.

The 6th-graders are studying the civilizations of the Incas, Aztecs, Mayas and Olmecs. They are working toward deciding on a project to present to the class on one of the civilizations. Combining creative writing and reading, they

AUXILIARY HEARS OF ENGLAND

On the evening of Oct. 5 the Jackson-Silver Unit was joined by the Post for a most enjoyable talk on England.

Past Unit president Mary Lyon introduced the speaker, Ruth Wight. Mary and Ruth had been members of a group which traveled to England in 1988 on an Elderhostel program. They lived in London for a week, attending classes in the morning and sight-seeing trips in the afternoon.

They also had the opportunity to travel by train to Wales and northern England. Mrs. Wight gave a most interesting lecture on facts about England and London, in particular, mixed with her observations and impressions of the people, trains, gardens, climate and scenery.

This triggered memories in some of the Post members who served there during World War II, and they briefly commented on some of their memories. At that time, of course, there was much destruction from bombings and these sites have now become very modern areas interspersed with the very old parts of London. Both Mary and Ruth brought pictures they had taken and a variety of pamphlets which were on display.

Following the program a meeting was held. Leah Deegan reported on the progress in preparing for the Girls and Boys State supper to be held Oct. 19 at 6:30 p.m. This is also the annual membership supper. In addition to those who attended Boys and Girls State, invited guests include their families; Shirley Williams, director of Girls State; Ruth Jucius of Turner who is Shirley's assistant; Annie Beck, of West Peru, past president of Oxford County Council and present secretary, who served as a counselor at Girls State; also department president, M. Jo Miele.

Leah also stated that vegetables and other items for the supper are needed and several members volunteered them. Other items such as flour and sugar for are writing children's books. More on this project later.

Our home/school counselor, Greg Grigsby, has started meeting with small groups. All grade levels are included and will meet once a week for eight to nine weeks. His first two groups are titled, "growing with loss" and "liking myself."

Our Friday activity periods are in full swing. Last week we had the Magical Mystery Tour with Mr. Burke; softball with Mrs. Clements; fall leaf placemats with Mrs. Verkuille; soccer with Mr. Litchfield; relay races with Mr. Koch and a variety of tag games with Mrs. Perham. The week's activities included the first meeting of the Benjamin Franklin Stamp Club. The new discussion stamps are out and interest is high. Long base, a variety of kickball, was fun. Apple printing was fun for those interested in art projects. Have you ever heard of Hens and Chickens? It's another good game. We are proud of our students and find that the vast majority participate in the activities and not in detention. Everyone, keep up the good work.

See why people travel to come to the Bethel area to shop!

New report cards coming for district grade schools

Teachers in the SAD #44 elementary schools will be sending home a new report card this year. The new progress report will be a three-fold card with separate comment sheets in a printed envelope. The envelope is to be signed by parents and returned with the card each quarter.

Karen Robinson, principal of the Andover Elementary School and chairwoman of the committee that revised the report card, said, "The response we have received from teachers, parents, and the community so far indicates that we accomplished our objectives to provide greater clarity, continuity, and a more accurate and understandable report."

Kindergarten has its own report card while Grades 1-6 use a common report card. The ranking and progress symbols are slightly different for the primary grades, however, which uses a 1-5 scale to indicate achievement rather than letter designations. The format has been clarified and the new report includes new curriculum areas such as computer.

Parents and teachers are encouraged by the administration to make comments on the new progress report cards before a final revision is made, in the spring. All feedback will be collected by the Progress Report Committee at the end of the year and incorporated in the card that is printed for next year.

Parents from each town and teachers and administrators from each elementary school were represented on the Progress Report Committee. The new report will be discussed in each elementary building at an upcoming parent-teacher group meeting before the report goes out.

MAINE FOREST PRODUCTS WEEK

Governor John McKernan has proclaimed Oct. 15-21 as Forest Products Week in Maine.

In his proclamation, the governor recognized the forest products industry in Maine's "number one manufacturing business."

He indicated that Maine's paper, lumber and wood product producers accounted for more than 42 percent of the value of all manufactured products made in the state.

Maine Department of Conservation Commissioner C. Edwin Meadows said Forest Products Week was an appropriate time to reflect on the full spectrum of positive benefits received from Maine's 17-million acres of woodland.

"Maine's working forests are the basis for much of our high quality of life, both as a source of jobs and income as well as unsurpassed outdoor recreation opportunities. Maine's forest is truly a great provider," Commissioner Meadows said.

Peter Lammert, Utilization and Marketing Forester for the Maine Forest Service, said trees harvested in Maine may be processed by one of more than 500 company primary manufacturing mills which convert the round wood into hundreds of forest products including paper, lumber and dowel and furniture items ranging in size from birch toothpicks to ship keels and utility poles," Lammert said.

Maine's most recent report of manufacturing activity—the Census of Maine Manufactures 1986—indicates that the value of Maine made paper, lumber

Peak-week peepers fill inns and eateries

Local ledger pages are turning from red to black, thanks to fine fall weather and better-than-average leaf color.

After a disappointing summer season, tourist-oriented businesses have experienced a welcome boost in the last two weekends, as the fall foliage display has again drawn healthy crowds to the area.

Many restaurant and lodging establishments report that business has approached last year's level for the first time this season. Beds are again full and restaurants are "slammed."

In some cases the renewed activity, welcome as it is, has placed a severe strain on resources. Some businesses that have been running on skeletal staffs awaiting the winter rush suddenly found themselves overwhelmed and were forced to turn away potential customers.

And help in a hurry was often hard to find, as many local employees were themselves enjoying the outdoors, picking through the ski sales or heading off for the last weekend of the Fryeburg Fair.

The strain can take its toll. Said one local entrepreneur who spent both weekends on the front lines: "What do you do when you're tired of tourists and the busy season hasn't even started yet?"

and wood products was more than $4,036 million. Maine's gross value of product was $9,448.5 million.

The Extension Line—recycling facts, figures

Over the next couple of months, a series of Extension Line articles will be devoted to recycling, composting and cutting down on garbage.

The facts:

- Nearly $1 of every $10 Americans spend for food and beverages pays for packaging.
- Packaging contributes 30 percent of the weight and 90 percent of the volume of all household waste.
- About half the national paper, 75 percent of the glass, 40 percent of the aluminum and 30 percent of the total plastics output are used solely to wrap and decorate consumer products.
- One recycled bottle saves enough energy to run a 100 watt lightbulb for four hours.
- One three foot stack of newspapers saves one tree.
- Every ton of recycled paper saves 17 trees.
- Making paper from recycled paper uses 60-70 percent less energy and 61 percent less water than making paper from trees.
- Office paper and corrugated make up as much as 77 percent of an office building's total solid waste.
- Five million tons of disposable diapers are buried in landfills in the U.S. every year at a cost of about one billion dollars. The materials in disposable diapers take as long as 500 years to decompose.
- The energy needed to produce a pound of virgin rubber is 15,700 BTUs, while that expended for production of an equal amount of recycled rubber is 4,800—a saving of 70 percent.
- It takes one-half barrel of crude oil to produce one large truck tire. The utilization of that tire to make a new recycled product requires only 25 percent of the same energy needed to manufacture that same product with virgin material.
- Making aluminum products from recycled aluminum creates 95 percent less pollution than making the same product from scratch.
- To make one ton of aluminum from bauxite ore requires 65,749 kilowatt hours of electricity.
- Recycling 50 percent of the paper used worldwide daily would free 20 million acres of forest from paper production.

Outing Club's Ski Sale takes place Oct. 27-28

The Bethel Outing Club will hold its ninth annual Ski Sale Friday, Oct. 27, 6:30-9:30 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 28, 9 a.m.-1 p.m., at the Gould Academy Fieldhouse. New and used equipment for alpine and cross-country skiing and other winter sports, and clothing and accessories will be featured.

The popular fall sale continues to grow each year, as more of Maine and New Hampshire's most prestigious shops request participation, providing families, individuals, skiers new to the sport, experts and racers, too, an opportunity to get outfitted for the coming season at bargain basement prices.

The Bethel Outing Club, a non-profit community service organization, holds the annual sale as a public service and as the club's primary fundraiser. Proceeds from the sale are used to promote and support youth Nordic ski development programs, family outings, and other community service projects in the greater Bethel area and western Maine region.

Considerable credit for the tremendous growth and success of previous sales is due to the outstanding support of many volunteers. Anyone who would like to volunteer help in this worthwhile project should call Anita Remington, at 824-2131, or Don Angeline, at 824-2714.
